“ Dad I miss you so much it's been 8 years I found myself searching you up and crying my heart out. It hurts so bad knowing your really gone and can't hold me anymore. All I want is one last hug, it'll make everything better. I cry for you every night. I know your watching over me right now, I pray to god's every night hoping you'll come back to me. Some times I wonder if you still love me. Then I remember how you would do anything to make Nicole and I happy. You mean everything to me, and I'll never forget the way you loved me.

“ Hi. This is your daughter. I hope you know me. I can't even control how much anger and sadness I have. You were the father that anyone could ask for but of course the best things always have to come to an end. It is hard for me to say and I'm crying while reading and writing this. It's always hard to lose someone you love so closely. 8 years later and I still cry about it. My mom and sister are both doing great but would always be better if we had the other half. I love you and will never stop loving you no matter how long or live or no matter how long it is until we meet again and even then I still won't stop. Until we meet again?

“ I am so sad and sorry. I am writing this four years later because I was searching for you once again. I missed you and I will always miss you Scott. You were my first love. We had so much fun and so much laughter together. I had always hoped we would truly meet again here on Earth. We will meet again and hopefully we can laugh and be silly like we were in high school. I miss you Scott and I am heartbroken that you're not here with the people that love you. I will keep you alive in heart and my thoughts.

“ Scott, a little peice of me went with you when you passed..I'm grateful to have re-connected with you in the past couple years and to have shared some of our childhood memories of growing up on West Shore Road. You were more like a brother than a friend, someone to talk to and share adventures with. Knowing you and your family helped shape my childhood. I hope you meet up with my brother Larry in heaven, he always considered you a little brother too! RIP my friend, I will never forget you! Cindi

“ Scott, Our Brother, you are missed. The good things you did for others & the kind heart you showed others will live on, & pass on, to generations to come. You were from the 'ole school' & never missed a moment to tell others about it in hopes they might have "ears to hear" & glean some wisdom. Many know the soft hearted guy that reached out to help others. It all worked when there's fairness, unselfishness, reasonableness & caring for family. None of us is perfect but helping others was a priority and your daughters hold you high as their hero. On your FB page you posted "I STILL HAVE IT !!" speaking about the fact that you were the only one that could brush out the tangles in the girls hair without them freaking out. That meant the world to you! Proud Pa-pa. Nicole & Meagan know your heart and they know how much you loved them and there will be others that tell them stories to remind them of the great Daddy you were. They will remember, & we pray God will protect & shield their little emotions & hearts. You are still with us as God is holding your hand there & He's holding ours here. You & your entire family are in our thoughts & prayers. The Williams Family
