“ Today is December 23 and it's the 2nd year of life without you. It hasn't gotten any easier. There are days that I would give my left arm to hear your voice 1 more conversation 1 more hug 1 more laugh. Jason helps he reminds me that all I have to do is look in the mirror and your there. Your in the love I show my family but but I'm selfish and I want just 1 more moment. I miss you so much mommy 😞

“ My deepest sympathies are with Dolly's family at this time as they move forward with their lives. Though I only met her a few times, I know from the remarks of her daughter and son-in-law that she was a good woman who was appreciated by all those around her for patience and love. A part of her continues to live on through her children and grandchildren.
