“ I knew Ed, as Cynthia’s husband, Clay. I felt he was a kind and thoughtful person. He seemed complicated, yet a bit transparent but a gentle soul. That was evident in his love for his animals over the years.

I’m truly saddened by his untimely passing. And even though I didn’t really know him well, I found a closeness in hearing at times, their conversations and interjecting my opinions in situations.

I’m positive he is in a better all welcoming place. God rest his soul.

“ I sit here and try to put into words, the great absence, having lost Ed has meant in my life. We had our own very unique mother/son relationship having found him 20 years ago after wondering about him for 35 years prior.

We instantly bonded and our relationship continued to grow over the years of many ups and downs. Although we didn't physically get together but a few times, we spoke every week. The times we actually spent together were just truly God sent. We shared every aspect of each others lives, sometimes more than I wanted to hear, that was Ed. But I wouldn't want to recreate a second of it. Each day this past week, I yearn to pick up the phone, but he's gone. I miss him beyond words.

My only solace is believing he is finally In a loving, peaceful kingdom surrounded by those who love and embrace him. Until then
❤️ Cyn
