“Dad can you believe I’m quoting a Gordon Lightfoot song...“If you could read my mind love (Dad)
What a tale my thoughts could tell”
The story would be amazing thanks to all the great memories. When I was a kid all I wanted for Christmas was a Barbie Doll Townhouse. So it’s late Christmas Eve as I go to Bed I say “if Santa bring Barbies Townhouse I hope he put it together so I can play with it in the morning”. In the morning it as put together. I thought my dad had an in with Santa only to grow up and realize my dad was my Santa....the endless Christmas Eves waiting on line at the bakery, getting breakfast, and then shopping for my mom....going out and people saying to dad “oh your wife” or to me “oh your husband” and I would say “wow dad do you look good for 75 or do I look like crap at 50” and we would laugh. The stories could go on forever just like the memories will. My heart breaks not having my dad. I’ll always love you and treasure our time watch over us. Rest In Peace. I ❤️ You Dad

“ John Cirello was like one of my brothers. He was such a good friend to me especially in recent years, always taking the time to stay in touch and to show he cared. We had many laughs together, hours of talking and fun when we would get to together with Joe and all the wives and enjoy an evening out at a restaurant. There were many of those times over the years and it seemed like not enough hours before the waiters would nudge us out.

He was a gentleman, always looking so neat and proper. I would kid him about the crease of his pants, always just so and of course his hair with not a strand out of place.

My heart hurts for Patty and their girls. I will never forget him.
