Lynne leaves behind a legacy of love, kindness, and cherished memories.

Born into a family that she cherished deeply, Lynne was the daughter of James Charles Smith and Rose Madeleine Farelli and the elder sister to Holly Gosselin. She was the loving wife of the late Charles Thor, with whom she shared a bond of unwavering devotion until his passing.

Together, Lynne and Charles created a home filled with warmth, laughter, and endless love.

Lynne's heart knew no bounds when it came to her family. Despite enduring the heartbreaking loss of her daughter, Lisa Thor, Lynne's love remained steadfast and resilient.

She found solace and strength in the embrace of her surviving children, Carl Thor, Carol Thor, and Ellen Plante.

Her family expanded to include cherished connections through marriage, including her daughter-in-law, Jen Osso, and son-in-law, John Plante, whom she loved dearly.

Lynne's greatest joy came from being a grandmother to Robert Jahn Jr, Angelina Fiscella, Cherise Hadley, Tom Sparks, and Franz Gleixner. She delighted in watching them grow, imparting wisdom and showering them with unconditional love throughout their lives.

In the later years of her life, Lynne was blessed with the arrival of great-grandchildren, Ayla Hadley, Travis Hadley, Paige Hadley, Tucker Hadley, and Salvatore Aiosa, who brought immeasurable joy, excitement, and laughter into her world. Throughout her life, Lynne embodied grace, compassion, and selflessness. Her love knew no bounds, and her legacy will continue to live on in the hearts of all who were fortunate enough to know her.

In addition to her career as a registered nurse, she found delight in the simple pleasures of life, from crafting whimsical jingles and playful rhymes to the gentle melodies she coaxed from the keys of her piano.

Her creative spirit danced freely, infusing each verse and chord with a touch of her unique essence. Lynne's talent for writing jingles and rhymes not only showcased her creativity but also brought smiles to the faces of those who heard her clever compositions. Yet, amidst her artistic endeavors, Lynne's greatest masterpiece was her family. She found true joy in having conversations with her children and grandchildren, and sharing stories and wisdom with each of them. Their voices were the sweetest music to her ears, filling her heart with boundless love and gratitude. Lynne's eyes always sparkled with anticipation as she envisioned those joyous reunions. Furthermore, Lynne's heart must swell with happiness at the thought of embracing her parents once more, feeling the tender embrace of their comforting presence.
