“ Roberta was such a warm and wonderful woman. I first became friends with her daughter, Julie, in junior high and high school. I spent many happy hours at their house, talking about boys, playing guitar and singing, and eating dinners with the family. Roberta always made me feel welcome, engaged me in conversation, took my opinions seriously, and was full of smiles and laughter. I will always treasure the fond memories I have of her, Ed, Julie, Beth, and Paul.

“ Grandma was one of the best people I ever met. She was very good-natured and I really liked her. Grandma was always very kind and it wasn't usual for her to be bad-tempered. Me and my family visited her a lot. She was very caring and sweet. I remember every time I went to her apartment I jumped on the couch and started watching the news. Every time I sat down Grandma sat next to me. We snuggled together. I really loved her. and I still do. She always made me happy. We always went to a Italian restoraunt called Amalfie's. My brother liked Amalfi's, too, but he preffered Ben's Kosher. Amalfies' staff really cared about her Because she went there so much. They were very concerned when they heard that Grandma was sick. When she was in the hospital, my dad visited her almost every day. I was very worried. I thought she was going to live, though. I didn't know she was going to die. I was very surprised when she died. And of course, I was very sad. I loved you, Grandma, and I will always love you.

With great honor,
Ryan

“ Roberta and my late wife, Barbara were best of friends and in their late twenties joined the Ansonia Independent Democratic Club. On one occasion the son of a NYS Governor, who had been crippled by polio as a child was visiting the club and on being introduced to him, Roberta observing his crutches, asked him if he had had a bad skiing accident!! Another time being late for an important meeting at the club, she slipped in the door and leaned back on the wall where the light switches were thus plunging the meeting in progress into complete darkness. What a pair. Roberta was a lovely woman and a very dear friend. Before she moved to the north shore she lived very close to us and I used to walk the three children to elementary school on West 70th street on my way to work. I will miss her immensely.
